Head of World Peace League Urges Calling of International Conference.

ADVANCES HIS REASONS

The time has come for President Wilson to call the great nations of the world together for the framing of a system for a world league to prevent aggression by any nation or combination of nations, declares George H. Shibley, president of the League for World Peace, in a statement opening up a new era, the federation of active steps toward calling the needed conference of great governments as di-rected by our Congress?

U. S. Should Be Represented.

"In behalf of an affirmative answer we is to enter the proposed league at the lose of the European war the United ference wherein the details of the proposed world league are to be discussed and agreed to; and until these details are agreed to—details which will settle the agreed to—details which will settle the big issues involved in this war—how will it be possible for the belligerent powers to agree upon peace terms? The German government has accepted the main principles demanded by the allies and agreed to by the United States, and, therefore, the next forward step, in our judgment, is for President Wilson to informally consult the belligerent governments as to when and where the needed conference of great governments shall be held, and then to call the meeting, so that the details of the World League to Prevent Aggression may be threshed out.

Question of National Rights.

"Shall the forthcoming world league The delegation of the local chapter to the ninth Grand Chapter conclave of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity, which was held-in Richmond, Va. during the past week, adjourning Wednesday, has returned to the city. It was headed by Manuel DeAguero and consisted of five alumni. be formed on the basis that the rights and duties of the nations of earth shall children, all married. rights, all differences to be settled peacefully in an international court? Or shall the national rights and duties be left unstated very largely, with a lawful right in each nation or group of nations to declare war in connection with all issues involving national honor and vital interests, provided an international commission shall have investigated each dispute and reported to the public its recommendation?

"Under this latter plan there would be a continuance of competition in armament, necessarily; whereas under the first described plan there would be an end to competitive armaments, the and Bryan.

the first described plan there would be an end to competitive armaments, the supreme power being vested in the world league government. Stated another way, under one plan there would be some non-justicable issues, along with competition in armament and war, doubtless; while under the other plan there would be a mutual guarantee of national rights with peaceful bama and Virginia, and the list of patrons and patronesses for the affair contains the names of many southern action, and progress has completely won—the German emperor through his chancellor is offering to surrender his military power and enter the world league to prevent aggression. Why not accept it and go ahead with the formation of the details of the league? The first step will be for the President of the United States to feel out the several belligerent governments as to the desirability of calling the necessary conference of great governments. And that is doubtless what President Wilson is doing.
